

Acknowledgments

The material for the book evolved from lecture notes prepared for various short-term and regular courses with which we were associated. A large number of colleagues and friends helped in preparation of the book at various stages. While it is not possible to mention all the names here, we will be amiss if we failed to mention a few individuals who have been particularly helpful. Mr. M K Goel gave suggestions and useful inputs for several chapters. Mr. P K Agarwal prepared many drawings and tables for the book. The help provided by Ms. Mahima Gupta through excellent typing and editing is gratefully acknowledged. Mr. Hemant Chowdhary and Dr. R. Jha provided suggestions and material for some chapters. Some material in this book is based on studies with which we were associated and thus we are grateful to our co-workers in those studies. The data pertaining to Sabarmati River system have been used in examples to illustrate various techniques throughout the book. Thanks are also due to the officers and staff of Gujarat Irrigation Department, involved with the collection of data, analysis, and management of Sabarmati River system.

Our families (Shikha, Sanchit, and Surabhi; and Anita, Vinay, and Arti) created congenial atmosphere at home and allowed us to work in the evenings and on weekends on innumerable occasions. Many relatives, friends, and colleagues gave encouragement while we worked on this book. Their support and good wishes are gratefully acknowledged.
